Dear Professors

Re: Merging the School of Occupational Therapy and the School of Physical Therapy.

I am writing in response to news that the Ministry of Education, Research & Religious Affairs is intending to merge the School of Occupational Therapy and the School of Physical Therapy and deliver a common curriculum for Physiotherapy and Occupational Therapy at the University of Western Attica.

The decision is of significant concern to the global physical therapy community and I urge you to reconsider.

The World Confederation for Physical Therapy (WCPT) is the sole international organisation for physical therapy, representing more than 350,000 physical therapists worldwide through its 112 member organizations. WCPT was founded in 1951 and since 1956, it has been a non-governmental organization (NGO) in official relations with the World Health Organization. WCPT is committed to moving physical therapy forward and to promoting the significant role the profession plays globally in improving health and wellbeing. WCPT encourages high standards of physical therapy research, education and practice.

The Panhellenic Physiotherapists' Association has been a member of WCPT since 1974, and WCPT recognises the Association as the sole authoritative voice for the physical therapy profession in Greece. As a member organisation of WCPT, the Panhellenic Physiotherapists' Association has the responsibility to establish standards for the education of physical therapists and standards of practice for physical therapists in Greece. It is the role of the Panhellenic Physiotherapists' Association to ensure that processes are in place to implement and monitor education and practice standards and to ensure that those wishing to practise physical therapy in Greece meet the standard.

WCPT member organizations vote upon international policy at WCPT General Meetings. Member organizations, such as the Panhellenic Physiotherapists' Association, have a responsibility to support, promote and advance the role of physical therapists ensuring that standards are in place to deliver quality service to the public. WCPT member organizations accept WCPT policies and work to achieve the standards of practice and education as described in the WCPT's policies and guidelines.

Physical therapists are qualified to undertake a comprehensive examination/assessment of the patient/client to formulate a diagnosis and prognosis/plan of care, implement a therapeutic intervention/treatment program if appropriate, evaluate the outcome of any intervention/treatment, and determine discharge arrangements. Physical therapy entry-level education should equip physical therapists to be first contact autonomous practitioners, able to assess and treat patients/clients without referral from another medical practitioner or other third party.

WCPT has held discussions with the Panhellenic Physiotherapists' Association to understand education and practice of its members in Greece. We feel that current professional education and practices are consistent with the guidelines of WCPT and the activities of the association are consistent with those of other WCPT member organisations. Recognising and using the title physical therapist in the Greece is consistent with the international profession represented by WCPT.

The merging of the curriculum in Greece will change this situation.

The two professions of occupational therapy and physical therapy share some common foundation knowledge however, they are fundamentally different professions with different graduate competencies. It is likely that a graduate of this merged course would fail to meet WCPT's description of physical therapist, or the physical therapist heading in the United Nations International Standard Classification of Occupations.

Therefore WCPT strongly requests that the Ministry of Education, Research & Religious Affairs reconsider the decision to merge the School of Occupational Therapy and the School of Physical Therapy

Yours sincerely
